Ninety-nine years ago today, April 9, 1865, General Robert E. Lee met with General Ulysses S. Grant in the parlor of the Wilmer McLean House to discuss terms which ended the War Between the States. Local residents and out-of-county visitors commemorated the event Sunday with a religious service and band concert. Reverend F. S. Wagoner, of Memorial Methodist Church, is shown above speaking to the gathering of about 250 on lawn of historic McLean House, now a part of Appomattox Court House National Historical Park. The Peace Service, originated about ten years ago by former TIMES-VIRGINIAN editor Calvin Robinson and others, was sponsored this year by the Appomattox County Ministerial Association.

Nation's Responsibility Theme For 99th Anniversary Service

Reverend Forrest S. Wagoner told the audience gathered for the annual Peace Service Sunday that God's grace to our country over the past 180 years has placed great responsibility on our shoulders. The service marked the 99th anniversary of the meeting of General Robert E. Lee and General U. S. Grant at Appomattox which brought about an end to the War Between the States.

Mr. Wagoner pointed out that our shores have never been invaded or our cities desolated. He said that in this country a man can arise above his environment and that "Society will recognize him for it."

He said that our many accomplishments as a nation give us "reason for humility" and also a clear call to "service to the world." Using a Biblical quotation he said, " 'Of him who hath much, much is required.'"

He said that individual citizens as well as the entire nation should keep their responsibilities in mind so that we do not repeat the downfall of the kingdom of Israel of whom Jesus said, "The Kingdom of God shall be taken away from you." Matt: 21:43.

Approximately 250 persons turned out for the service and band concert by the Appomattox High School band, despite a temperature reading in the low 30's, and gray overcast. The service was sponsored by the Appomattox Ministerial Association in the cooperation of American Legion Post 104, Jaycees, Parix Service personnel, and Appomattox High School band and Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Floyd Bingham.

Says Foxes Are Sick, Not Rabid

Incidents of rabies in foxes in other counties in Virginia have prompted some anxiety among Appomattox county residents, reports Graham Pitsenberger, county sanitarian. In addition, foxes in this area have been "acting strangely", he says, with the result that several foxes have been shot and the heads sent in to Richmond for examination.

Pitsenberger said Tuesday, 'Even though there was no human exposure, we have examined several fox heads lately, and to date the laboratory results on all have been negative for rabies.

"These animals apparently are very sick. Their actions indicate some central nervous system trouble along with an apparent loss of caution, their sense of smell or their fear of man and dogs.

"At the present time we see no public health significance in the sickness of these animals, but of course we want to keep abreast of the situation.

"We plan to continue to spot check the 'stranne acting' foxes from time to time, and every time if a human is exposed.

"Our fox situation appears to apply to our general area south of the James River. Rabies is causing quite a problem north of the James and in other parts of Virginia. In some of these areas vaccination of dogs has not been in force.

"In case of a bite by any animal, the family doctor and the health department should be consulted at once.'

County Farms To Divert 2,470 Acres

The seven week long signup period under the 1964 feed grain program ended March 27 with 300 county farms enrolled, the ASCS county office has announced.

These farms intend to divert 2470 acres from this year's plantings of corn, barley, and grain sorghum. The entire acreage not planted to these grains will be put into soil conserving use, J. A. Martin, chairman of the ASCS County committee said.

A report from the ASCS State Office shows that a total of 21,-948 Virginia farms have signed up in the 1964 feed grain program to divert 217,611 acres. This compares with 29,637 farmers signed up a year ago under the 1963 program to divert 190,-937 acres.

Farmers who participated in the feed grain program earn payments on diverted acres and, in addition, earn payments on the feed grains planted. Total payments to Virginia farmers under the 1964 program are expected to exceed $7 million, Mr. Martin explained.

Mr. Martin said that the objective of the feed grain program is to help bring production into line with demand, to reduce excessive stocks and to cut Government costs. Farmers contribute to this goal by voluntarily diverting feed grain acreage. The program has operated since 1961.

Scouts Selling Circus Tickets

Hundreds of Cubs, Boy Scouts, and Explorers are knocking on doors in their neighborhood, selling tickets to the American Heritage Boy Scout Circus which will be held May 2nd, in the Lynchburg City Stadium, Lynchburg, Va.

Clifton H. Lewis, Jr., District Executive, Farmville, said, "The funds realized by the boys in their door-to-door sales effort will pay for the circus expenses since it is a self- supporting show. In addition the boys will secure official Scout equipment as ticket sales bonuses. The ticket sales program will help prepare a boy on how to meet people and sell himself to them, a trait he will need as an adult.

Alfred P. Taylor, General Chairman for the Piedmont Area Council's Scout Circus, said that the circus performers will be members of Scouting units portraying key events in American History that have enriched the nation as well as demonstrating how Scouting's program highlights patriotism and basic national values for the youth. He continued, "The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will consist of eight acts. Each act will use the football field as its ring. Act themes are: Original American, Pioneering Spirit, Battle for Freedom, Nation Grows Stronger, and A Look to the Future. Between acts, entertaining features will be put on by Cub clowns, Koshore Indian Dancing, and other featurettes."
